

Privacy Notice

Pencil Street will never pass your email address or other information about contributors, general site visitors or members to other companies or organisations except to comply with court orders or law enforcement agencies.

We do not sell any personal information held by Pencil Street to any organisation or persons.

We use third-party advertising companies to serve advertisements when you visit our website. These companies may use anonymous information (not including your name, address or telephone number) about your visit to this and other websites in order to provide advertisements about goods and services of interest to you. These companies may use cookies to record your visits to this site. Users may opt out of the use of the Google Dart cookie by visiting the Google Ad and content network privacy policy. You may opt out of the specific media targeted advertising by visiting the Network Advertising Initiative Opt-Out site.